

Dismissal Roles, Salah Supervision and Furniture

DATE	MEETING	CHAIR	PRESENT
Tuesday 15 Sep 2026	Weekly check-in	Principal	Principal, boys' section supervisor

01 · DISMISSAL, 4:00 TO 4:15

The supervisor stays inside, an academic tutor takes the cars outside

The chaos inside the building at dismissal outweighs the chaos outside, so the roles are being split. The supervisor and Mufti Masrur manage the inside: students seated by group with their bags, quiet, and lined up along the wall in the order their rides tend to arrive. An academic tutor is posted outside to identify the incoming cars and send students out, and the supervisor only steps outside when a situation requires it. Which teachers stay behind until 4:15 to help with the Metro and bus group will be set out in a schedule.

The principal will be at the door at 4:00 on Wednesday and Thursday this week, and again on Monday and Tuesday next week, to train the outside person on the cars. He is not available Friday. Today runs as usual; the schedule takes effect tomorrow. The transition will take a few weeks, and a slower walk-up is an acceptable price for a calmer hall.

Walkie-talkies are hard to hear at that time of day and a newcomer will miss students. The working rule is a one-minute buffer: if a student called for does not come out, open the door and call back inside. The current staging stays in place, Secondary 1 and 2 in one area, Secondary 3 and 4 on the other side, Grade 6 on one side and Grades 4 and 5 nearest the doors, with a teacher beside each group.

DECISION

Inside first, then swap. The supervisor offered to be the person outside every day, staying ten or fifteen minutes after dismissal. The principal chose to keep him inside because nobody else is as invested in building that system. Once it runs on its own, the roles switch: the outside person is trained on the inside protocols and the supervisor returns to the door.

Teachers supervise the students around them, groups are back by 1:50

Salah is at 2:05 and the hall is now used almost to the back. Teachers who come down tend to pray and nothing more, which leaves supervision of the whole hall on one person. The principal will speak to the staff about taking initiative: each teacher watches the students near them at salah and at dismissal without being asked. Lack of initiative was named as a problem across the board, not only at prayer time.

The main thing that breaks the set-up is groups returning late. One teacher has twice brought his group back at 1:50 or 1:55, when students should already be seated, and has been told both times that groups must be back by 1:50. From now on the supervisor keeps a note of repeats and tells the principal, who intervenes directly after a third instance.

REMINDER

Log it, then escalate. Individual patterns, a teacher who is repeatedly late, a student who repeatedly disrupts, are to be recorded and reported to the principal rather than handled a third time by the supervisor alone.

Student requests go through Maulana Haroon, then Mufti Masrur

The class discussed last week is running more easily. Students are being taught that they do not come to the supervisor directly: requests go through Maulana Haroon, then Mufti Masrur. Maulana Shadman is not used for this because he is often on the other side with a group of about thirty.

The supervisor still wants to go over the report the principal sent last week. He had expected the meeting tomorrow and had not prepared it, so the review moves to the next check-in.

Four benches are available now, two or three desks for classroom C

At least five benches are needed downstairs. Four are free immediately: two in the corner of the Alimiyah room upstairs and two in Ibrahim's class, none of them in use, and they can be taken permanently, along with anything else spare from the Alimiyah side.

Desks are being carried from one classroom to another almost daily to seat everyone. Two or three more are needed, above all in classroom C, the room directly below at the end of the corridor near the Alimiyah room (the rooms are A, B and C). The principal will count what the school has; most desks are already in use. The desk that held the tablets was moved out and the tablets can stay on the floor for now.

The corner room by the washroom is to be emptied to make it breathable. The one or two desks in it go to classrooms, the printing equipment moves in so teachers have a small place to work, and the library material and other stored items go to the girls' side. The principal will ask a few brothers to come around 7 or 8 this evening to do it.

05 · LUNCH AND WATER

A second microwave, no filter for now

The microwave line takes about fifteen minutes, from 11:50 to 12:05 or later, because most boys use it. At least one more microwave will be bought, either beside the first or on the other side of the room.

The boys bring water bottles and there have been no complaints, so the water filters used on the girls' side are not needed upstairs at this point.

06 · WEEKLY CHECK-IN

Tuesdays at 1:30

This meeting will be held every Tuesday at 1:30. The principal meets the academic tutors on Wednesdays, so anything raised on Tuesday can be passed to them the next day.
